The Hornets, local girls' basketball team which initiated that game in Hondo last year after a noticeable absence of several years from the field of sports for girls and young women, will reorganize in the near future and start steady practice in preparation for its second season.

The girls came out fifty-fifty in their games last year, having won four and lost four, and meeting such rivals as Sabinal, Trio, State Hospital, Cowart's Aces, P. & S. Hospital and Laurel Heights Methodists, the last four from San Antonio. The Hornets will welcome any additions to their group; beginners will be as equally welcome as seasoned players and both are invited. Some interesting games are promised the fans.

The Hornets met Monday night at the home of Mrs. W. G. Muennink for the purpose of discussing plans to finance the season; funds are necessary for light rental and a greatly needed new basketball. HON. CHARLES R. TIPS

Charles R. Tips, chairman of the executive committee on the Roosevelt-Garner campaign in the Fifteenth district, has announced the organization of the Garner District Roosevelt-Garner club.

Units of the club will be established in every voting precinct in the district, and 40,000 cards pledging the voters to Roosevelt and Garner are being prepared to scatter throughout the 23 counties comprising the district, he announced.

Tips has traveled more than 3000 miles in the last few weeks preparing the campaign, and he expects to travel an additional 2000 miles before November 8. Accompanied by Congressman-elect W. D. McFarlane of Graham, Texas, six of a series of 23 meetings planned, were held the past week at Fairfurnas, Sarita, Harlingen, Brownsville, Rio Grande City and Zapata.

A record breaking majority for Roosevelt and Garner in the fifteenth district is predicted by Tips, who, in recognition of his great admiration for John N. Garner, was elected a delegate to the National Democratic convention in Chicago, where he was among the last to hold out for Texas' favorite son.

One of the organizers of the Federal Farm Loan system in Texas, Tips was secretary and treasurer of the National Farm Loan association at Three Rivers and was president of one of the Joint Stock Land banks, with headquarters in San Antonio.

The founder of the town of Three Rivers, he has been in the farming business there since 1913. For the past six years he has been in the

HON. CHAS. R. TIPS SPEAKS.

To make Hon. John N. Garner's home district the banner Democratic district of the state at the November election and to help win a great Democratic victory in the nation by contributing to the national Democratic campaign fund was the theme of Hon. Chas. R. Tips' address at the courthouse in Hondo Tuesday night. Mr. Tips is Chairman of the 15th Congressional District Campaign Committee and his visit to Hondo was in furtherance of the plans and purposes of the organization. In an hour's address Mr. Tips eulogized the statesmanship of Roosevelt and Garner and told of their achievements, the one as governor of the empire state of New York and the other as a member of Congress for thirty years and now speaker of that body. By comparison, he told of Republican promises in 1928 and of Republican failures in 1932, and pointed out that extravagance in government expenditures and excessive taxes are the twin evils from which we are suffering and from which we can escape only by a change in administration. The excessive rates of the Republican tariff, instead of producing revenue for support of the government and at the same time maintaining employment for labor at prosperous wages, is having the opposite effect; shutting out imports from foreign countries, it cuts off revenue for this government and at the same time closes foreign markets against the sale of American products, thus causing surpluses to pile up in this country and at the same time throwing American labor out of employment, thus destroying a large part of the buying power of the home people, paralyzing the home market, and bringing on panic and want in the midst of plenty.

Pointing out that the Republican party is being liberally financed by great wealth that has fattened on Republican granted special privilege, he said the Democratic party has no such sources of revenue to tap; it is the party of the common people and must be financed by the contributions of the common people; and he urged Medina County to bring up her $650.00 share of the fifteenth district's $15,000.00 of the state's $150,000.00 contribution to the national campaign fund.

At the conclusion of Mr. Tips' address, Fletcher Davis explained that contributions to the campaign fund could be paid to him as the County manufacturing business in Three Rivers, and has been working to help develop the food packing industry and the dairy industry in this state. During the last two years he has represented the South Texas Chamber of Commerce as vice president of Progressive Texans, Inc., working for the development of the state.

BUY ONE AND HELP THE CAMPAIGN FUND.

Roosevelt-Garner Medallion, this emblem is being distributed to contributors to National Democratic campaign.

Chairman representing the District Committee and that each contributor of one dollar or more would be given a campaign button and a receipt showing the amount contributed. He invited the co-operation of any one wishing to assist in selling the medallions and said that inasmuch as all feel the excessive taxes we pay on nearly every thing we do the matter of financing a campaign for relief should be a personal matter appealing to everyone.

LET'S ALL VOTE.

It used to be in Texas that a man could vote in the Democratic primaries and as soon as the result was known forget it, for the matter was settled for the next two years; not so now in these times of supple-jointed consciences and contempt for party organization.

Since Mrs. Ferguson has been declared the nominee, a renegade democrat has stolen the livery of Republicanism in Texas in which to serve the hate-mongers of anti-Fergusonism; and as a tool in the hands of conscienceless Republican spoiler on one side and "super-conscience" party wreckers on the other, he is a dangerous factor to forget or ignore at the present time.

An organized and well financed campaign is on to urge and instruct the willing how to scratch Mrs. Ferguson's name from the printed ballot and vote for the anti-Ferguson figurehead, posing as a Republican with his name in the Republican column on the ballot.

That the only interest this organization or their figurehead has in the campaign is not in giving the state a real Republican state administration—which might not be a bad thing for the state—but to gloat their hatred of Mrs. Ferguson is proven by the organization being manned solely by anti-Fergusonites and by their figurehead's puerile offer to withdraw from the race if Mrs. Ferguson would withdraw.

Republican voters are certainly under no party obligation to support one who places so little value upon their party's principles as to offer to thus barter them for such a trifling gratification of hatred.

Those renegade democrats who would wreck their party to achieve a gratification of their unreasoning hatred for the head of the state ticket would do well to remember that to do so is to defeat the will of half a million of their fellow citizens and not merely crush a lone woman.

If they wish to carry their inter-party dissatisfaction into the general election and perpetuate it into a permanent split of the party, whereby designing party renegades can profit by playing both sides from the middle, they cannot better achieve it than by succeeding in their present treasonable designs against the party's nominee for governor.

The echoes from such party perfidy will continue to reverberate in Texas politics possibly long after the present actors have passed from the scene.

These party nominees who appreciate the honor that their party has conferred upon them should publicly repudiate this treachery to their party head, and he who will not should be repudiated by the voters at the election.

This is no time or place for traitors in the ranks and scratching is a weapon as effective in one's hands as another's.

In the meantime, all real Democrats and especially those who carried Mrs. Ferguson's standard successfully through two primaries, should remember that safety to her cause, to the party's future usefulness and to the welfare of the state demands their presence at the polls and a straight Democratic ballot in the ballot box on November 8th.

Let no one fail in his duty!

Let's all vote!

CANARY GRASS FOUND VALUABLE BY DAIRYMEN.

By Juliette Frazier.

Some of the Oregon dairymen have found that canary grass sowed on land which is too wet for any other crop turns many an acre which would otherwise be useless into good pasture for cows.

Joe Kemper of Washington county says that canary grass is a great boon to the dairymen who wishes to reduce the cost of milk production. Two years ago Mr. Kemper sowed a few acres of wet land to canary grass. Today this land is taking care of ten head of dairy cows. These cows are getting no grain and are maintaining good production.

Canary grass seed can be sown in the mud, just as soon as the high water drains off the land. On the Kemper farm last spring the canary grass started growing while the water was still over it. On some of the creek and river bottom land which generally is left to go to waste this grass offers good possibilities and it may be irrigated if necessary.

Four-H club girls in Ellis county feel a missionary urge this year to help others less fortunate than themselves, says Miss Irma Ross, home demonstration agent. She cites the case of Myrtle Morgan of Mt. Peak Club who has helped 12 families who did not own pressure cookers to can their products properly. This does not include help given other club girls.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

In addition to increasing our postal rates on mailing our papers about 25 per cent, the Hoover scheme for relieving the depression compels the post office to charge us two cents for every notice of change in address it delivers to us. You can send us a notice on a 1c postal card and not notice it, but a 2c charge on us will soon aggregate a burdensome sum to us, so we beg of you to not leave it to the post office to notify us of change of address but do so yourself as soon as a change is made. Postmasters are asked to send no notice until several undelivered papers are accumulated and then only one. Thanking you in advance, we are,

Yours truly,
THE EDITORS.

DEMO VICTORY NATION'S HOPE.

Hoover's Re-Election Would Prove Calamity.

Plauding that a change of administration is necessary in order that the American people's confidence in the government may be restored, E. C. De Montel, local attorney and chairman of the honor roll committee in the local Democratic campaign, issued a statement Friday urging all persons who possibly can do so to contribute to the Roosevelt-Garner campaign fund.

Declaring that "we cannot survive the present expensive government," and that the re-election of President Hoover would be "a calamity," Mr. De Montel offered the following statement:

"The honor roll of the Democratic party is under way, and it is the duty of all free men and women who are interested in preserving and saving our government for posterity to give to the cause and give liberally.

"The present president, the wolves of Wall Street, special privileged big interests and international bankers are trying to tell the free people of this country how they have to vote. They are even going further than that. They are making dangerous threats in a desperate and frantic effort to secure the re-election of the present president in order that the 'pots' of his administration may prey upon the country further in their selfish greed.

Praise for Garner.

"When I say dangerous, I mean it, for the spirit of our ancestors, the sturdy pioneers who went through untold hardships to settle this land and make it a land of the free, and a better place in which to live, dwells in us and will eventually be awakened in this land, and then I fear to think what might happen, for all that we can be guided by, is the dark pages of history. We must restore the confidence in our government, and this can be done only by a change in administration. The present president and his cohorts cannot do it, for the American people have lost faith in them.

"They tell you that John Nance Garner is not a safe man. I have known him for 30 years. I had cast every vote that I ever cast for a congressman for him until I went into the army in 1917. I know him well. I know the people of his district. My grandfather settled in what is now his district in 1842. We know that he knows the wants and needs of the laborer, average oil man, the farmer, the stockman, the average business man, the average banker and the average American family by his personal contact with them.

"If John Garner is elected vice president, I will assure you that his good wife will never embarrass the president or cause an international disturbance about where she has to sit at the dinner table.

"John Garner knows the needs of the American people, and that in my opinion is what the present president does not know. Our president is out of touch with America and Europeans, and is too familiar with Europe and Europeans and big business. He and his cohorts are fighting for his re-election with their backs to the wall. They are desperate.

Campaign of Fear.

"They are spending thousands of dollars and using every means to coerce and force his re-election by instilling into the minds of the people fear of a greater calamity in the event he is defeated, but we have all listened patiently to his false prophecies these four years, and we know no greater calamity can befall us than his re-election.

"I ask all men and women in this district who are able to, to contribute to the cause and help preserve this government and this country for posterity. Let's awaken before the last crumb is swept from our table, and we are made slaves of the few, for we cannot survive the present expensive costs of government that our present president has and is heaping upon our sore backs."

$1700.00 takes a 5-room cottage, in perfect condition, in desirable part of town on gravelled street. Ring 127 or apply at Anvil Herald office.

AMONG THE BUSY BEES.

At the time of this writing we are close to the end of September with lots of moisture in the ground and plenty of fall flowers blooming. The bees are strong and should have their old queens destroyed. The colony will raise a young queen. There are also drones aplenty in every apiary in southwest Texas, and young queens are certain to be fertilized by the best of drones.

With the abundance of rains we had in our semi-arid country, we can confidently hope for a heavy flow of water-clear Huastilla, Catsclaw, and Mesquite honey next spring unless something unforeseen happens.

The advice to kill old queens is of course much easier given than carried out, for although the queen is larger than the ordinary worker bees, she has quite a tantalizing way of hiding and running on the other side of the comb. Yet, if you succeed in getting these old queens out and thereby force your bees to raise young queens, you will not be bothered much or any with swarming in spring 1933, and you will get worlds of honey for sale.

Poor combs in a colony of bees is said to be a handicap, says Mr. Cliff Muth. I say that a poor head on the beekeeper is the biggest handicap, for no man with average good business sense will tolerate poor combs in any of his hives, and absolutely no drone-combs over just a few cells in corners of frames.

The Milkfrost ice cream is again stirring up interest in some beekeeping localities. It appears that bee-men have been led to believe that a world of honey will be used up for said Milkfrost, while up to this date the Milkfrost manufacturer has not yet been a factor in the honey market, and most people do not yet know that particular kind of confection, although it is very good.

At the annual meeting of the Texas Beekeepers' Association at College Station, Texas, the following officers were elected: Roy S. Weaver, President; H. E. Coffey, Vice President; H. B. Parks, Secretary-Treasurer; T. W. Burleson, Judge for the State Fair; H. A. Victor, Superintendent for the State Fair; T. W. Burleson, delegate to American Honey Producers League; A. W. Bulay, delegate to Southern States Beekeepers' Conference.

A sad story of a laborer of an oil company in Fort Worth was reported lately, where said laborer was stung to death by bumblebees while cutting down weeds on said oil company premises. Bumblebees have slightly longer stings than the honey bees, but I delight in killing same out with bees nor brood left, to ever be able to come back and sting to death any oil company's employee.

Mr. Carrington Calloway, a Virginia honey producer and peddler, had trouble in proving to the police of a certain Virginia town that he had produced the honey himself and was, therefore, not subject to a $50.00 Virginia state peddler's license. I understand we have a somewhat similar peddler's law here in Texas, but we got it too late. We got it after these honey peddlers have demoralized the market to such an extent that the regular trade would rather buy tarantulas and rattlesnakes for resale, than they would honey. The honey peddler did it to us, so now each man is for himself and the devil to get the hindmost.

SWIPED.

Jones, the honey man, was preparing to show the city guest through his apiary. "Better put on these bee gloves," said Jones. "Oh, that will not be necessary," replied the guest. "I will not desire to shake hands with any of your bees."

Dumb Questions answered by a dumb editor:

Dear Editor: Will August sun melt a wax worm? (No, but it will sometimes singe the wings of a bee moth.)

Dear Editor: Do my bees weigh things on wax scales? (Not when worms frighten them.)

I measured the tongues of my bees selecting the longest;
I studied the strength of the swarms picking the strongest;
I weighed each bee on a delicate scale;
Bred the yellow kind with heaviest body and tail;
And now, oh hell! I have only yellow jackets to sell.

HONEY CRUSTS.

* Trim and butter 6 half-slices of stale bread, and arrange them in a buttered baking dish. Core three large juicy tart apples and halve them crosswise. Lay them on the bread, cut side down, and fill to overflowing with a mixture of honey and nuts, lightly salted. Bake half an hour, or until the crusts are brown, crisp, and sugary, and the apples brown, tender and foamy. * Serve hot or cold with whipped cream. Butternuts and Brazil nuts are particularly good.

THE EGG IN THE DIET.

The egg, because of its concentrated form of protein, mineral and vitamin content, has become the hero of the diet. The egg plays just as well the leading role in desserts as in breakfast dishes.

At the Helm---In Time of Need!

THE RED CROSS.

The American National Red Cross has functioned effectively ever since its organization by rendering immediate relief to the distressed, and sending men into the fields where disasters have destroyed property and taken many lives. Medina County has been an active member of the National Red Cross and has contributed annually funds for the maintenance of the Red Cross. In the past several years Medina County did not raise its quota of membership, nevertheless its membership was retained by the few faithful who would annually contribute their mite and thus keep in contact with the National Organization.

The quota for Medina County for this year is 450. By concerted action and aggressive salesmanship this quota can easily be raised. The membership fees $1.00, fifty cents of which goes to the National Organization and fifty cents remains in the County Chapter. Any amount subscribed over one dollar remains with the local chapter.

The officers for the Medina County Chapter who will "out over" the drive during the month of November, from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day are:

W. N. Saathoff, County Chairman, Hondo, Texas.
Mrs. O. H. Miller, Vice-Chairman, Hondo, Texas.

The egg is one of the dietitian's favorite dishes when preparing the invalid's diet. The value of poached egg, soft boiled or combined with orange juice cannot be over-emphasized.

The one thing to always keep in mind about the egg is that it must never be cooked too rapidly. Even the hard boiled egg is much more tender if simply left in boiling water for 30 minutes without addition of heat.

NO HOME FOR RATS.

Repair the corn crib and granary, clean up rubbish that may harbor rats, and rid the farm of these pests now—and you will avoid damage to stored grain and food this fall and winter. Success in campaigns against rats depends largely on cooperation in destroying them on all the infested farms in community at the same time. Rodent-control specialists advise mixing enough bait for the entire community at one place and using it on the same day on all infested farms. The specialists say that red squill—a poison deadly to rats and mice but comparatively harmless to cats, dogs, and other animals—is one of the best rat poisons. Fresh fish, ground in a meat chopper, is an attractive bait for this purpose. Meat, cereals, and fish mixed separately but put out at the same time to give rats a choice of food will give best results.

BAPTIST NEWS NOTES.

Worship at the Baptist church on next Sunday at the usual hours. The Bible School begins promptly at 10 o'clock, Mr. Glenn E. Fluker, Superintendent. Oct. 30th, is World's Temperance Sunday, therefore the lesson will deal with the crime of liquor drinking. Of all the things which our poor humanity does not need it is death dealing liquors. At the morning hour, the Pastor will speak on "Christian Union", or why all followers of Christ should be united, and not divided, as we have today. The Pastor is informed that our Methodist friends will have no worship at their church on next Sunday, due to the absence of the Pastor; therefore, a special invitation is hereby extended to them to worship with us. On Friday night of this week, Nov. 4th, there will be held at the church a get-together meeting of the officers and teachers of both the church and Sunday School. Mr. Fluker will preside; and all teachers and officers are expected to be present. Refreshments will be served.

All night meetings at the church will be held at 7:00 o'clock hereafter. The Pastor is giving, at the mid-week meetings now, "pictures of growth" in our denominational life, due to missionary operations. They are both illuminating and entertaining. Better come and hear them.

At the close of their church year the Pastor of the Baptist church takes occasion to express his personal appreciation of the brotherly spirit of Bro. Lancaster. Our relations have been altogether pleasant. This kindly feeling is extended also to his congregation.

Come to the Baptist church on Sunday night for a profitable hour of worship.

The Pastor.

BAND OF STAR COMICS IN NEW OAKIE FILM.

W. C. Fields, Ben Turpin, Andy Clyde and Hank Mann Support Jack.

Stellar comedians and pretty girls constitute the cast in Paramount's hilarious Olympic Games farce, "Million Dollar Legs", which shows this Friday and Saturday at the Colonial Theatre.

The comedians include Jack Oakie, W. C. Fields, Andy Clyde, Ben Turpin, Hank Mann, George Barbier, Hugh Herbert and little Dickie Moore. Never before has such a cast of comedy stars appeared in one picture. Advance reports say that they play their respective roles to the hilt, and that each in turn "steals" the picture.

The girls are Lyda Roberti, blonde stage star who first achieved honors in "Dancers in the Dark" and Susan Fleming and Geneva Mitchell former Ziegfeld Follies charmers.

The title, strangely enough, does not apply to any of these beauties. In this Oakie has "it"—or rather "them"—the million dollar legs which are to put the little People of Klonopost, just across the Austrian border, in the running (no pun intended) for Olympic title honors.

Next week—Claudette Colbert and Clive Brook in "The Man From Yesterday".

MR. AND MRS. CONNEVEY ENTERTAIN.

The approaching Halloween season added zest and color to a delightful bridge in honor of the Elite Bridge Club, last Friday evening, with Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Connevey as hosts. Baskets of cosmos and autumnal colored field grass formed a charming setting for the bridge, and bridge appointments further carried out the chosen motif.

Refreshments of date loaf embossed with whipped cream, and coffee were served by the hostess, assisted by her daughter, Miss Anna Laura Welhausen.

Following the bridge prizes were awarded Mrs. Earl Cureton and Mr. Henry Windrow for the club members and Mrs. Alfred Schwerts and Mr. Ivan Bedell for the guests.

The personnel was as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Henry Windrow, Mr. and Mrs. George Windrow, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kollman, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Cureton, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Bedell, Mr. and Mrs. Meliff Lippold, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Connevey, and Misses Tusselda Wurzbach and Anna Laura Welhausen.

THE FERGUSON IMPEACHMENT.

The politicians who "framed", and impeached Jim Ferguson fourteen years ago, thinking that they were forever removing him from Texas politics, were badly mistaken.

There are enough people who believe that there was a great injustice done Jim Ferguson to make him a strong political character who will not down.

An impeachment is supposed to be a political execution and burial. But they were never able to bury Jim; in fact, they did not kill him in any sense of the word.

Those ancient enemies have grown weaker while Ferguson has grown stronger.

Let malicious politicians take warning, that their judgment is sometimes set aside by the judgment of the people.

E. J. MURRAY.

Very gratefully,

THE BRIDE'S ROOM.

A Real Life Story by Gloria Brumby.

Mrs. Annie MacFadden ambled lazily from the steamy kitchen to the freshness of the dining-room with the screened windows and flower-filled vases. Sitting down on a straight-backed chair she wiped her perspiring forehead with the cleanest corner of her sugar-bag apron and heaved a deep sigh. For fifteen years Mrs. MacFadden had repeated this lunch-time process, this short recess twist serving and washing up.

"My", she said to the hard-boiled bunch of boarders busily attacking their hot crab cakes, "this is Lucky Friday for somebody".

Silence. The hard-boiled boarders knew this short recess as a period when Mrs. MacFadden got the trials and joys of the morning off her chest, and their noonday hour was too busily occupied for much conversation.

"I repeat," said Mrs. MacFadden in her thick, confident voice, "that this is Lucky Friday for somebody."

John Adderly looked up from his coffee cup. "Just how could any Friday be lucky for anybody, or any other day either," he said cynically, and neatly folded his green checked napkin that matched the tablecloth.

Mrs. MacFadden did not take offense easily. Of all the Irish on Holy Hill she had the reputation of being easy to get along with and of being kind. When a prospective boarder came to her she always imparted the news that she gave more than she got, and that was saying some because Mrs. MacFadden was the recipient of many little love gifts from students and government clerks who strolled their feet under her loaded table. But this morning John Adderly peevish.

In her Catholic heart Mrs. MacFadden really liked any Friday. She enjoyed the appetizing odor of fish as a change from stew or hamburger and thick gravy.

Carefully she smoothed out a crumpled telegram that she had taken from the pocket of her loose house-dress.

Christie's just been married this morning. Her on the third floor front next to you, Miss Griggs."

Ursula Griggs didn't appear thrilled. She was a passable grass-widow, long since disillusioned, who enjoyed being called "Miss"—same as Mary Pickford and the women of the Lucy Stone League.

"That so?" she said, as if she found the news horribly disappointing.

"That's something, and her the fourth one to be married out of that room in two years."

"Just her bad luck, I should say, and fancy anyone wanting to leave whether Mack's hot crab cakes permanently or even temporarily for any thing in trousers", and everybody laughed as Miss Griggs shook her pretty head in mock seriousness.

"Bad luck your Saint Anthony," muttered Mrs. MacFadden fervently, and then she took to blushing. "Bad luck, nothing," she repeated, closing her eyes with a low sigh, "everyone of those marriages is lastin' and seven babies already from out of that room, and Miss Christie that was says they are on a honeymoon to Atlantic City and to put the vacancy sign in the window again."

Mrs. MacFadden held the telegram with her left hand and crossed herself twice with her right. Marriage to her was a holy event as well as a happy one. Uncle Joe, washing pots in the kitchen, felt the same about it. His blue Irish eyes smiled only a trifle dimmer on his Annie as he peered towards the dining-room than they did fifty years ago when he courted her among the green fields and the fat geese and the white blossoms of Ould Ireland.

"Bedad," he commented in his sweet, thin voice, vigorously polishing a big, black iron frying pan. "Marriage seems to be falling off some of our young folks like dead leaves. When Annie Mack and myself got spliced it stayed like that. Them harum-scarum unions give me a pain in the neck, but it's as the old lady says, all the marriages from out that third floor front has stuck."

John Adderly wiped his mouth on a blue bordered silk handkerchief.

He said, "You should put the rent up, Mother. Permanent bride's room to rent, $5.50, come early to avoid the rush." Then turning to the young lady on his right, his fresh face beaming, he suggested, "There's a chance for a sensible young lady like you, Miss Merrilees; want me to carry your things across the lobby?"

Miss Merrilees glowered at him through eyelids brought close together and said icily, "Chance is a good thing, Mr. Adderly," whereupon she folded her napkin and left the dining room.

Never since she started her boarding house had Mrs. MacFadden felt so mystified about anyone as she did about Mona Merrilees. "Them professional women's all dark horses," she often commented.

John Adderly, as if reading his landlady's thoughts said with his quizzical grimace, "That skirt doesn't suffer from any inferiority complex, anyway."

Mrs. MacFadden smiled acidly. "It wouldn't hurt you to keep your smart gags to yourself all the same. I'm not so sure that Miss Merrilees wasn't insulted or near to it. You know Miss Mona ain't the marryin' kind. She led me to believe that and besides some women likes hospital charts better than they like baby carriages. They'd rather bring other people's babies into the world than their own," and Mrs. Mack's breast heaved in animation beneath her wrapper.

John Adderly who knew women supported his landlady in this oration.

GEO. W. ARMSTRONG
Independent Candidate for Governor of Texas
Judge Armstrong, in stating his position on issues of the campaign said:

"The overshadowing issue in this campaign is: Shall money rule Texas? Both railroad lawyer Bullington and ex-railroad lawyer Ferguson stand for the cessation of road building and the suppression of truck competition with the railroads; I am for good roads and for the repeal of the 7,000-pound truck law. Both of them are for the repeal of the 18th Amendment; I am against its repeal and against the repeal of state constitutional prohibition and of the Dean law."

"I favor the organization of the 618 state banks of Texas into a state currency and credit system; a moratorium on all real estate mortgages and bonds until values are restored; a graduated inheritance tax as a substitute for the state ad valorem tax; and for a new state constitution to simplify and reduce the expenses of government. There will be no Proxy Governor in case of my election."

no Jim Ferguson, L. B. Greaser or any other Prime Minister. An effort will be made during the closing days of the campaign to stampede the people into supporting Bullington as a means of defeating Ferguson. Don't be deceived by it. There is no chance of his election, and even if he were elected he would not be much of an improvement over Ferguson. Regardless of what others may say, vote for the man you think will best serve the state in this crisis. I will speak over the radio on the following dates:

"All the same some day that ice-box will burn up about somebody, if she is not secretly sizzling already, even if she doesn't know the difference between a dishpan and a Florida sunset."

"I'm not saying that you wouldn't marry her yourself and be glad to do the dishwashing."

"This is one time when neither your bride's room nor your engineering prowess can register matrimony," and John Adderly squinted cunningly out of his green eyes that were either cat's eyes or Irishman's.

Mrs. MacFadden rose from her seat and moved tiredly towards the window.

"A grand day for anybody's wedding," she said smiling and looking down the road speckled here and there with patches of sunshine, and imagined she could hear the birds singing above the noise of the traffic.

John Adderly followed her to the window, fumbling in his pocket for an after-lunch cigarette.

"Sure enough, it's a fine day," he acknowledged, and there's the little ice stepping out to the hospital."

"Yes, to be sure, and her as neat as a pansy. More suitable I should say for her to be pouring tea at her own table than dippin' her pretty fingers in them nasty smelly antiseptic solutions."

John Adderly smoked complacently.

"I like 'em a bit plumper with big, black, banjo eyes. She is pretty enough, but misleading. I'm taking no frost princess to my ancestral home."

"So you want a dime thriller, true story passion queen," and Mrs. MacFadden laughed a cackling little laugh that gently rocked her stocky bulk. "Well, the tastes of my guests is all their own business, but if I was a man I'd like a plain brown crock for a lasting instead of one of them fancy ornaments that's liable to fall and be broken any minute."

Mona Merrilees walked sedately down the concrete steps, wisps of pale honey-colored hair sticking out beneath the rim of her smart blue felt hat, that almost matched her blue eyes.

A speeding roadster turned round the curve before she got across the street.

John Adderly, followed by the panting Mother Mack, pushed thru the crowd that had gathered like bees around the accident. A short, dark young man was wiping the dust off Miss Merrilees' pert little nose that was beginning to swell up in a red lump.

"That was a pretty close shave, you crazy devil," John said harshly, bending down to acquaint himself of the real extent of the injuries, "what dam fool way was that to come around a corner?"

"She's not hurt much, but we'd better take her into the house," said the dark young motorist in a decisive voice which John resented.

"I'll carry her myself and you take that dam car off the sidewalk."

Mona felt strong enough to walk but she did not struggle in John's protecting arms.

"You'll have to take her upstairs, we've been painting the parlor and the second floor bedrooms are all tore up. Put her in the third floor front. It gets all the fresh air and sunshine, and you'd better wait, young man, till we see the extent of the damages. I'll go into the house and telephone the doctor."

"No need to do that, madam, I am Dr. Graham Merrilees, and the young lady is Mona, my wife. As I'm only an interne at the Farley Hospital we haven't been able to go housekeeping yet. Apart from the shock and that lump on her nose there's nothing to worry about. That green roadster has always brought me bad luck."

"Why don't you put all the blame on Friday," sneered Mrs. Mack as she preceded the young man into the house.

A few moments later John Adderly came down the stairs and sat on the bottom step beside his landlady.

"Got her up to your bride's room too late," he said sarcastically.

"Aint my fault that a smart young man like you wasn't in at the finish. Get out of my way. I bet there's some hot water needed. Maybe you'd like to take it up."

"That would just be interrupting. She's probably asleep in his arms by this time. This sure is a lucky Friday for some people, huh?"

HOW JUNIOR LEARNED TO EAT EGGS AND LIKE THEM.

By Juliette Frazier.

"Yes, I think with plenty of fresh air, rest and good food, the child will gain strength rapidly," said the doctor; "but do not fail to give him plenty of fresh eggs."

All went well for a week, then the glass of milk and egg began to have part of it left, and then it was pushed back untasted.

The problem of teaching children to like the right kind of foods is a common difficulty. When a mother has planned the dishes to be given during the day she is only half done. There is the equally important task of presenting them in the right way.

For instance, in Junior's case, it was decided not to bother him with eggs anymore. When the tray was brought up there were apparently no eggs, so Junior ate everything on it. When the empty tray was put on the kitchen table his mother laughed and held up three fingers.

"He ate that many and did not know it."

"How did you manage?" I asked. "One yolk in the chocolate, one white in the mashed potatoes one in the little muffins and one in the custard."

Day after day the tray was brought up with eggs disguised; a tablespoon of cold rice with two beaten eggs made an appetizing omelet. There seemed very little on the tray for lunch—a slice of toast with creamed fish over it. But Junior did not know that two eggs blended in it and the ice cream was cream and egg, while the chocolate sauce poured over it owed its fine texture to the yolk of an egg.

Fruit juices furnished an endless means of giving eggs beaten in and filled with chipped ice. Salads were often used, for even if eggs were not smuggled into the salad, the dressing was made of an egg and oil.

A great deal depends on the way food is offered to a child. When the child refuses to eat a certain kind of food, do not try to force him; take it away and serve it again prepared differently. Scolding serves only to increase his aversion to the dish in question. Furthermore, food that is eaten under anger or fright is less easily digested than food consumed under happier circumstances.

THOROUGH PREPARATION KEY TO SUCCESS IN FALL GARDENING.

Pointing out that fall gardens should furnish fresh vegetables from the middle of September to Christmas anywhere in Texas, J. F. Rosborough, horticulturist in the Extension Service at Texas A. and M. College, emphasizes the importance of thorough preparation as the biggest single factor in success.

"Most fall gardens that fail do so because they were plowed and disced only once, leaving big clods," he says. "The ground should be plowed shallow, disced several times, and allowed to settle. Weeds should not be plowed under but cut and raked away. Fertilization is more important in fall gardening than in the main spring garden. Better than well-rotted manure at this time is a mixture of 50 pounds nitrate of soda and 100 pounds high grade acid phosphate to one-tenth acre, or a 6-8-4 fertilizer at the same rate. This holds for all parts of Texas except the Blacklands and the heavy soils of West Texas. Since germination of seed is poorer in the fall, one-fourth more seed should be planted than in the spring.

"Slower maturing vegetables suitable for planting from August 10th to September 1st are cucumbers, cream peas, pinto beans, Irish potatoes and winter squash. If not planted during that period these vegetables should not be planted at all. For September plantings are suggested cabbage, radish, cauliflower, carrots, beans, onion sets, beets and Swiss Chard."

"Those interested in fall gardening will find by inquiry at least one demonstration garden near at hand from which they may get pointers, or information and help may be had from county farm and home demonstration agents. The Extension Service has available C-59 "Fall Gardens", obtainable from these agents or direct from the Extension Service at College Station.

Age doesn't slow up Cooke county's veteran farmers who are just as progressive as the younger ones, declares L. L. Johnson, county agent. He says three of them who are well over 60 years of age have terraced nearly every acre of their rolling land since he taught them how to do it a year ago.

Dilley, Texas, Sept. 27, 1932.
Mr. Fletcher Davis,
Hondo, Texas.

Dear Sir:

I have enjoyed reading your editorials in the "sample copies" of your Magazine; it has given me renewed hope, that the small papers will return again to the realms of political independence and, regardless of their political affiliation, take a positive stand, a firm position for what they think is for the best interest of their country.

I am now 66 years old and I see so many of our local editors so fearful of "losing business", that they do not have a positive idea and have played the "pollywog" so long practically no business.

I was glad to see you take the position you did relative to the Ferguson campaign; it is pitiful to contemplate the lack of stamina, personal initiative and general mental efficiency of Governor Sterling.

Mr. Davis, I am convinced, that the Democratic party will either have to amend our primary election laws or return to the convention system of nominations.

Such men as Tom Love, Sterling, etc., have no sense of political honor; they are the offshoots of a decadent idea. Their inanity is often considered venal, but it is not. I am real sorry for them; "They know not what they do". They are to be pitied, not censured. I have just finished reading the last issue of Love's "Farm Democrat". It is also his first. The idea that Tom Love could have a "farm idea" is absurd.

I attended the first meeting that was held in Texas, for the purpose of curbing the saloon influence (politically) and try to readjust the handling of spirituous liquors; it was held in the city of Waco on the 5th day of May, 1885; I was a young school teacher at that time and the meeting consisted of 54 delegates from several towns and counties and was mostly teachers and young lawyers and only one minister. Chas. H. Boyanton, a young attorney from Vermont presided at that meeting. I think his son now lives in San Antonio.

When I returned to my home in Bosque county, my mother (a strong Methodist and also my father) and father warned me to be careful, as there was danger of corrupting the democratic personnel of our state. My mother was a great reader, well educated and my father was a thinker and is yet, although 93 years old. She knew the next step would bring us nearer to a long drawn out fight over a question that bore no relation to the science of government. She said it would fill our pulpits with panders instead of representatives of the Savior; our legislative halls with weaklings who had no other qualification but being for or against prohibition.

As the years rolled on, I watched the drift of the political mind; it soon became subservient to the trend of prohibition majorities regardless of other political requirements. The minds of our candidates were fixed on the ebb and flow of that one idea and in 1912 one of the strongest political machines that had ever been constructed were oiling the bearings to be ready for the 1914 campaign; Tom Ball, Cullen Thomas, Tom Love and a number of the major lights of the Baptist church ministry all co-ordinating with the Anti-Saloon League were busy making out the list for the various state, district and representative offices. BUT, there was an unknown force in Bell County, that they had not even considered, although it had been for some time trying to call attention to the horrible conditions under which the tenant farmers of the great cotton belt were living. They cared not for the tenant farmer; they weren't interested in sobriety; they wanted power and political control of the state. That FORCE IN BELL

COUNTY was JAMES E. FERGUSON and he wrecked that machine. They have hated him from that time to this. He sent Tom Ball and Cullen Thomas to the "scrap pile" and now Dan Moody, Tom Love, Sterling and hundreds of lesser lights will march out of the picture.

Hoping to meet you some time and form a closer fellowship, I am,

Yours very truly,
NEAL A. DOUGLASS, SR.

AN AUTHORITY ON CRIME.
Writing in Harper's Magazine,
Jack Black, who served several long terms for felonies, effectually explodes much of the hysteria about crime and criminal legislation. He says most of the reformers begin at the wrong end. They advocate more laws, when present laws are adequate and additional legislation serves only to make the problem more complex and create more criminals. They criticize the police, when the fault lies in the system that has undermined many of our police departments.

Graft and corrupt politics have so lowered respect for public authority that police departments are crippled and honest, intelligent men are discouraged from taking up such work as a vocation.

Mr. Black speaks as an authority. He has been a criminal and has known thousands of other criminals. He asserts that third degree methods, the American prison system and a burden of laws, tend to increase crime.

There has been too much favoritism in handling crime. We must apprehend the guilty and protect the innocent. We need well-paid, high-class police officers. Otherwise, we will remain impotent in our fight against the underworld.—Selected.

BACK TO THE FARM

By L. A. Seymour

Isn't it really remarkable that so many successful ex-farmers who made their financial start in life farming are now residents of our cities and are engaged in some mercantile or industrial pursuit? However, many of them gladly spare the time from their business activities to counsel with and advise the present day farmers as to the best methods of managing their farms and marketing their products in order to realize a substantial profit from their labors.

Due to the present world-wide economic conditions, for all of which President Hoover and the Republican congressmen are being held responsible, we have, in this the richest country on earth, approximately eleven million unemployed people, many of whom are objects of charity, but not because of any responsibility of theirs. Assuming that there is, at least, another eleven million people who are dependent upon the unemployed for their daily food and clothing, we have twenty-two million unfortunates who are wholly dependent upon employment or charity for their daily living.

One of the remedies suggested for this chaotic condition is the "Back to the Farm" movement, and I am wondering whether those advocating such a move have given serious consideration as to what would be required in order to make it possible for even one half of the unemployed and their dependents to become actual farmers and what the effect would be on the present economic conditions.

A surprisingly small per cent of the unemployed in our large cities are experienced farmers and able financially to purchase even a small farm and equip it with the necessary teams or motor power and implements to enable them to do successful farming. The equipment for present day farming consists of more than a one-eyed mule, a Kelly turning plow and a Georgia stock. I imagine some one asking, "How about farming on halves?" This question may be easily answered by asking another, to-wit: "How many landlords under present conditions would be willing to furnish everything including money enough to feed and clothe the renter and his family until the crops are made and marketed? Rent for the third and fourth", suggests another. But how can the proposed renter who has no means, supply himself with the necessary equipment for farming on this basis, including feed and food for his family and teams, admitting that teams and tools might be purchased on credit?

Those financially able to engage in farming even as renters should be able to make a living farming, but they would have no assurance of being able to accumulate anything more than a bare living under the present economic conditions. Another phase of this "Back to the Farm" movement not to be overlooked is the lack of city conveniences in the country, such as running water, hot and cold, gas, electricity, and the convenient modes of transportation. This, in a large measure, will cause many to hesitate making the change.

Imagine, if you can, what the effect would be upon the present chaotic conditions should all the inhabitants of the cities of New York, Chicago, Saint Louis, and Detroit move to the rural sections of the United States and engage in farming. Numerically speaking, it would be nearly the equivalent of this were eleven million of the people now living in the cities of the United States to move to the farm. Automatically, this would reduce the number of purchasing consumers of agricultural products by eleven million and at the same time increase the competitive producers of farm products by the same number.

Governor O. M. Roberts said, "Civilization begins and ends with the plow." Commissioner Geo. B. Terrell said, "Farming must pay or the Nation will perish". Both of these sayings are axiomatic and cannot be successfully gainsaid, as is evidenced by our complete dependence upon the farm for our food and clothing. But unjustly, farmers are equally dependent upon the gamblers in the stable agricultural products for the price they receive for these products.

Could the farmers market one year's products right now at prices that would enable them to realize the legal rate of interest on their investment and a reasonable profit on the actual cost of production, the sun of prosperity would soon shine so brightly that the gloom of depression would be dispelled from view.

Farmers as a class, are free spenders of money when they have more than they need for the actual necessities of life. Some people criticize them for this, but are not they as justly entitled to enjoy the luxuries of life and experience the pleasures they afford as are the millionaires whom they feed and clothe?

TO THE VOTERS

By Robert L. Campbell.

It was Raskob and the demon
Back in nineteen twenty-eight,
And the gambler; Bishop Cannon,
And the bootleg triumvirate:
And the fear of Romanism
Which we now know was a myth
That enabled Herbert Hoover
To outrun our Alfred Smith.

We then listened to the Preacher
Who forgot his Holy Writ
To become the high hat teacher
Who would save us from the pit.
He said Smith would burn our Bibles
And the Pope would rule the land
If we didn't vote for Hoover
Whom he said was very grand.

Well filled dinner pails he'd give us,
And we'd all become quite grand,
And we'd have a modern Eden
Right here in our native land.
Each garage would have two autos
If by Hoover we would stand,
And gaunt and straggling poverty
He would banish from our land.

We would never need a poorhouse
And our labors would be light
When the magic wand of Hoover
Had been waved to set us right.
He would rid our land of liquor
And make churches of our jails:
Even Robert "Fetters" Lucas
Had us hunting Holy Grails.

So we followed these blind leaders
And you now can hear our wails,
For 'twas soup lines Hoover gave us
Instead of full dinner pails:
And instead of modern Edens
He has brought the racketeer
Who has sapped our country's morals
And has filled our hearts with fear.

And his promise to the churches
Has been running in reverse
For our jails are overflowing
And the times are getting worse.
Yes, our shops are now all idle
And our men are out of work;
And for bringing these conditions
Herbert Hoover tries to shirk.

But his tariff wall around us
Has destroyed foreign trade
'Till our farmers and our stockmen
Now can hardly make the grade.
For just thirty cents per bushel
Is all they can get for wheat
While there is a hungry army
Who has nothing much to eat.

And the stockman with his cattle
Sees the wolf right at his door
As his overhead and taxes
Ever skyward seem to soar.
Our garages now are empty
For we cannot buy a Ford,
Although our minds with promises
That Hoover made are scored.

Then there is the World War soldier
Who has never been outclassed,
But was driven from the Capitol
By Herb Hoover and his gas.
Herb gave the Huns their interest
But he makes you pay up yours;
Yes, his every deed in office
Our prosperity obscures.

He has helped the foreign nations
Flood this land with bogus bonds,
And has lured the trusting worker
Right up to the dragon's fangs.
And so still this brazen bigot
On his drunken power dotes,
And hopes by glowing promises
To again win foolish votes.

But surely there's some reason left,
Some minds that are alert,
Some patriotism left that will
Such catastrophe avert.
We've tried out Hoover; we need a change;
And we cannot make it worse;
So let's all vote for Roosevelt
And heal this Hoover curse.

BRIDE-ELECT HONORED.

A miscellaneous shower honoring Corinne Koch was given at the Parish Hall on the afternoon of October 23. Floor baskets filled with white flowers and fern were placed on either side of the honoree. A blue and white color scheme was further carried out in other decorations. Little Misses Carmen Boog and Emily Zinsmeyer, in ruffled frocks of blue and white respectively, led the bride-elect to her place as a wedding march was being played on the piano. Miss Koch wore an ensemble of maroon and tan crepe. The many attractive gifts were in a blue and white wagon drawn by the same little girls. Delicious sandwiches, cake, and iced tea were served to some 110 guests by the hostesses, Mesdames A. J. Boog, Pete Brubaker, Simpson, M. E. Dugosh and Misses Corine Rieber, Evelyn Koch and Lorine Zinsmeyer.

PUE-KOCH.

A pretty wedding was solemnized in Holy Cross Catholic Church when Miss Corinne Koch was married to Mr. Arthur Pue of San Antonio, on Tuesday morning, October 25, Rev. F. Maas officiating. Potted fern bordered the aisle, and chrysanthemums in floor baskets had been placed in the sanctuary. While Miss Lucy Rothe played the Bridal Chorus from "Lohengrin" the attendants entered in the following order: Misses Evelyn Koch, Lorine Zinsmeyer, Josephine Dugosh, bridesmaids; Corine Boog, maid of honor; Mrs. M. E. Dugosh, matron of honor. The groomsmen were Harold Nester, Hilmar Koch and William Rohrbach. The bride, in white satin with wreath and veil, and carrying an arm bouquet of white chrysanthemums and fern, entered with her father, Mr. Ferdie Koch. She was met at the sanctuary by the groom and his best man, Elmer Koch. The bride's attendants were attired in maroon crepe dresses, with black accessories, and carried yellow chrysanthemums. Little Misses Charlotte Boog, flower girl, and Lucille Fillinger, train bearer, wore maroon crepe frocks; Master Wilbert Holliday was the ring bearer.

After the ceremony, the bridal party, the immediate relatives and several other friends of the newly married couple assembled at the home of the bride for the wedding breakfast.

The bride is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ferdie Koch and a graduate of D'Hanis High School. Mr. and Mrs. Pue will make their home in San Antonio.

"ROSETIME" A SUCCESS.

The musical comedy "Rosetime", which was presented under the auspices of the Community Club, was played to a crowded hall on Friday night. Three choruses of girls and boys, whose songs and dances were well rendered, made the program especially interesting. The cast gave a good performance and there was not a dull moment in the action. The finale included a miniature wedding and the tiny tots taking part brought to a climax an evening of wholesome entertainment.

D'HANIS P. T. A.

The P. T. A. held its first meeting of the school year at the D'Hanis Public School October 19th, with the new president, Mrs. Louis Ernst, presiding.

This was the twenty-third anniversary of the founding of the Texas Congress of Mothers and the occasion was fittingly observed. Eight little boys, dressed as pages in the club colors, entered as Mrs. Love played a spirited march. They carried candles which the president lighted, naming one for each of the eight past presidents of the Congress.

The next number was a piano duet by Mrs. Love and Caroline Nester. Mr. Scott as Parliamentarian gave a brief talk on Parliamentary procedure. He was followed by County Superintendent Saathoff, who addressed the meeting on matters educational.

The chairman of the Membership Committee reported the appointment of room mothers and the enrollment of four new members: Mrs. Ben Reitzer, Mrs. Adolph Lamm, Miss Hilda Batot and Miss Lillian Brucks. The treasurer then gave a report of the financial status of the club. After the selection of delegates to the County Council, which will be held in Yancey November 5th, the meeting adjourned.

How to Make It

A SET of shelves with ends cut out to represent animals provides an interesting piece for the child's room and encourages the child to keep his books and other things in order. It is easily made by anyone handy with a saw and hammer.

First trace the animal—in this case a bunny—on paper and cut to the desired shape. To prevent gluing two or more widths together for the end pieces, use pressed wood which may be obtained in sheets from your lumber dealer. Trace the paper pattern on the pressed wood and cut out with a scroll saw. The same material may be used for the shelves which may be of any desired length. Narrow strips of pressed wood or pieces of quarter-round may be used to support the shelves. These should be screwed to both the end pieces and to the shelves. A single piece of pressed wood will provide a back.

Paint the shelves any desired color. Touch up the eyes, ears, collar, etc., with a small brush, using a contrasting color.

NEW, CHEAP STEEL FROM AUTO JUNK

Old Hulks May Now Be Converted Into Valuable Material

That every old automobile hulk now rusting in a vacant lot or back road will soon disappear entirely from the scene is predicted by engineers. These hulks will be converted into new steel through the use of a new form of briquetted ferro-alloys shown at the recent National Metal Exposition in Buffalo.

Ferro-alloys in the briquetted form were exhibited by Electro Metallurgical Company, a unit of Union Carbide and Carbon Corporation, and are produced at the company's plant in Niagara Falls.

Not only will this development aid in clean-up campaigns in almost every locality in the country, but it will also help to produce cleaner, stronger steels at a lower price. The labor of removing these hulks and cutting them with the oxy-acetylene blowpipe to size for shipment promises also to create local employment in many centers where such work is being done under the direction of various relief and civic bodies.

Save time and trouble of writing and save that boy or girl away at school from homesickness by sending them the old home paper regularly every week. Sent from this office for the period of the school term for $1.00.

Elevators Whisk Tourists 750 Feet Through Ground

Visitors to the immense Carlsbad, N. M., Caverns will no longer have a 750-foot climb. For the caverns now have elevator service comparable to the most modern city skyscraper.

Recently one elevator was installed in the huge caves to accommodate the thousands of visitors that flocked there annually but this proved inadequate and now engineers of the Otis Elevator Company are working day and night building a second elevator running from the depths of the cavern to be in operation on September first.

This elevator is the regular skyscraper self-leveling type. It has a capacity of 2000 pounds and operates at a speed of 700 feet per minute and will carry twelve passengers in addition to the operator.

With the exception of the Empire State Building elevators, those in the Carlsbad Caverns will be the longest single lift passenger elevators in the world.

Waffles for Fall Breakfasts

By Jane Rogers

WITH cold weather coming on apace, now is the time to re-introduce your family to the delights of crisp, piping hot waffles for breakfast. Next Sunday morning at the latest prepare an appetizing batch of bran waffles and see how eyes light up and appetites sharpen at their appearance.

Here is the way the waffles are prepared; and it's delightfully easy. Sift one and a half cups flour, four teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon salt, and two tablespoons sugar. Beat the yolks of two eggs and combine with one cup of milk. Add to the dry ingredients and mix well. Add one-half cup of melted shortening and three-fourths cup of bran. Then add the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs. Finally, bake in a hot waffle iron until the mixture ceases to steam.

Bran waffles, in addition to being a delicious variation from the old-fashioned kind, possess numerous scientifically approved health virtues. Bran has long been recognized as a valuable food because it provides the cellulose or bulk necessary to keep the intestinal tract functioning properly. It is one of those regulatory foods that are essential to good health.

Very recent research, moreover, has shown that bran also furnishes Vitamin B and iron. The vitamin is useful in improving the tone of the intestines, while the iron helps to make good red blood. In short, while enjoying your waffles to the full you can also have the satisfaction of knowing that you are promoting the good health of yourself and your family.
